Tanoreen

Before it was a glittering, full-scale restaurant wooing diners from around the borough and beyond, this Middle Eastern eatery was Bay Ridge's go-to answer for top-notch takeout. Happily, there's still a sub-space dedicated to just that — brown-bagging orders of roasted brussels sprouts with pomegranate sauce and tahini, chicken schwarma sandwiches, garlic greens and garlic-ier containers of hummus that taste fantastic at any temperature.

I like how even with a photo of the awning, you guys managed to spell "Teresa's" incorrectly.

Apparently the best take-out/delivery in Williamsburg and Greenpoint is Anytime. Or rather, apparently you folks have not been doing it right. If you are gonna go for something of that ilk (as opposed to the myriad other options) you could have at least plumped for BAD Burger.

Sillies. EVERY restaurant in my Boerum Hill neighborhood does takeout and most deliver. So who has the best takeout? Whoever has the best FOOD. Were you only counting places that have a walkup order counter? Most restaurants will gladly let you hang at the bar if you're so cellphone/internet deprived that you can't call ahead to place your order.
